

CONTENTS

Preface	11
INTRODUCTION: SEARCHING FOR THE ORIGIN OF POLITICAL IDENTITY	15
1. The Burning Man of Tunisia	17
2. The Universal Political Animal	23
3. What Economics Can and Cannot Predict	34
4. The Invention of the Political Litmus Test	45
5. Unearthing the Three Roots of Political Orientation	56
I. TRIBALISM ON THE POLITICAL SPECTRUM	63
6. Ethnocentrism vs. Xenophilia	65
7. Religiosity vs. Secularism	81
8. Attitudes toward Sexuality, Homosexuality, and Gender Roles	106
II. THE BIOLOGY OF TRIBALISM	129
9. When Outbreeding Is Fit and Inbreeding Isn't	131
10. When Inbreeding Is Fit and Outbreeding Isn't	147
11. How Optimal Mating Happens	171
12. Why Gender Inequality and Fertility Change across Human History	194
13. The Biology of War and Genocide	214

III. DO WE LIVE IN A JUST WORLD?	243
14. Attitudes toward Inequality and Authority in Society	245
15. Attitudes toward Inequality and Authority within the Family	262
IV. THE BIOLOGY OF FAMILY CONFLICT	283
16. Why Sibling Conflict Occurs and Polarizes Political Personalities	285
V. ARE PEOPLE BY NATURE COOPERATIVE OR COMPETITIVE?	297
17. Sages through the Ages	299
18. Do Perceptions of Human Nature Change as We Age?	315
VI. ILLUMINATING OUR TRUE HUMAN NATURE	325
19. The Conservative Altruism: Kin Selection	329
20. The Liberal Altruism: Reciprocity	343
21. Altruism across the Lifespan: The Neurological Development of Cynicism	358
22. The Altruism That Isn't: Self-Deception among People and Politicians	367
23. The Enigmatic Altruism of Heroic Rescuers	395
Concluding Thoughts	401
Acknowledgments	415
Appendix A: A Brief Word on Correlations and Level of Significance for Laypeople	417
Appendix B: Joe the Plumber, Political Elites, and the Controversial Existence of Public Opinion	421
Notes	427
Figure Credits	489
Index	493